

The Construction Management Education Sponsorship Act— Building the Industry's Future

An educational fund to help develop future industry leaders

The Construction Management Education Sponsorship Act (CMESA) was created in 1991 to maintain and increase the quality and availability of educational programs for the construction industry. Funds generated by the CMESA go towards accredited construction management programs and facilities in California colleges and universities. The objective is to help the industry prepare for the future and keep pace with increasingly complex workplace requirements and the growing demand for construction management graduates. The award recipients are determined by the Contractors State License Board's Construction Management Education Account Advisory Committee.

I want to help build the construction industry's future!
Please accept my donation to the CMESA account for California Colleges and Universities.

Name _____

Address _____

City / State / ZIP Code _____

Phone () _____ Email address _____

Business Name _____

Contractor's License No. _____

Please make your check or money order payable to "CSLB / Construction Management Education Account."

Please send this form with your donation to:

CMESA Account
Contractors State License Board
P.O. Box 26000
Sacramento CA 95826

